

TELLERS WITHOUT BORDERS

Storytelling and Peace Building

Online Workshop

Part 1: October 29, 2024, 5 pm - 7:30 pm - Silvia Angel

Part 2: October 30, 2024, 5pm - 7:30 pm - Martin Ellrodt

Discover the power of storytelling for peace!

In the first part, our workshop will introduce you to peace projects that are based on storytelling. Get to know practical tools and methods, try them out and enter into a dialog about how you can use them in your own work. Be part of this inspiring journey to change.

Do all stories tell of conflict? And if, do I want to or should tell about them, how do I tackle them? Are there stories that repel me on the one hand, but don't leave me alone on the other? In the second part of the day, we will deal with these questions and find one or two answers. Please bring along conflict-free or conflict-laden stories that interest you in some way or ask you questions.

Workshop Leaders

Silvia Angel got to know storytelling during a peace project in Israel in 2011. Inspired by this, she completed her training as a storyteller at the International School of Storytelling in England. Since then, she has been telling stories on large and small stages that inspire social change. She is a member of Tellers Without Borders e.V. and completed her Master's degree in Peace Education at the University for Peace in Costa Rica last year.

Martin Ellrodt has been a stage storyteller and storytelling teacher since 1991. He has been invited to perform and lead courses on four continents and in four languages, in cooperation with the Goethe-Institut and other international organizations. Teaching assignments at German universities and didactic centers. Book publication: Von der Sprechübung zum freien Erzählen. Operator of the platform www.erzaehlen.de
